This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

FIRST ANNUAL REPORT

OF THE

STATE TAX STATISTICIAN

GENERAL REPORT

PART I

BY AUTHORITY

LANSING
ROBERT SMITH PRINTING CO., STATE PRINTERS AND BINDERS
1896

Sec. 4. The Tax Statistician shall keep his office in the city of Lansing, and may conduct his inquiries in person or through agents duly authorized by him whenever the desired information can, in his judgment, be procured more satisfactorily and more accurately by personal examination than through other means. He shall make such investigation relative to taxable property and the value thereof as shall tend to determine the proportion thereof which is assessed and the relative taxes paid on the various classes of property within the jurisdiction of the State and its political subdivisions; and such investigation may, in his discretion, be pursued by inquiry of or verified statements made by unofficial persons.

Sec. 5. The Tax Statistician shall have power to compel the attendance of witnesses and to examine them on oath, whenever it may appear to him necessary to do so in order to determine any question pertinent to the inquiry hereby instituted, and he is hereby empowered to issue process for the attendance of witnesses in any part of the State; but no witness so summoned shall be required to attend any sitting of such Tax Statistician elsewhere than within the county in which such witness resides. Such witnesses shall be entitled to and shall receive the same fees as are allowed to witnesses in the circuit courts, to be allowed and paid by the Board of State Auditors upon the sworn certificate of the State Tax Statistician that such fees were incurred necessarily under his direction and for the purposes required by this act. Any person duly subpœnaed under the provisions of this section, who shall wilfully neglect or refuse to attend or testify at the place named in the subpœna served for such purpose shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction before any court of competent jurisdiction may be punished by a fine not exceeding fifty dollars or by imprisonment in the county jail for a period not exceeding thirty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court. The prosecuting attorneys of the several counties shall be the legal advisers of the State Tax Statistician, when necessary, without extra charge, and shall take notice of all complaints made for violation of the provisions of this act, and prosecute the same to completion in their several counties and in all the courts of the State.

Sec. 6. The compensation of such Tax Statistician shall be fifteen hundred dollars per annum, which compensation, together with all necessary expenses, including the compensation and expenses of such witnesses, assistants and agents as are provided for in this act, shall be audited and paid in the same manner as the salaries and expenses of other State officers; but the amount thereof, exclusive of the salary of said Tax Statistician shall not, in any one year, exceed the sum of two thousand dollars: Provided, That in addition to the above allowance for expenses, said Tax Statistician shall be authorized to have printed not to exceed five thousand copies of his annual report to the Governor for general distribution, and all printing, binding, blanks and office supplies required for the use of his office shall be furnished under any contract which the State now has, or shall have for similar work or supplies, and the expense thereof shall be audited and paid for in the same manner as other State printing and supplies.

Sec. 7. The Tax Statistician shall arrange the work of his office so that during the sessions of the Legislature he can at all times be in readiness to furnish such information as is obtainable, or conduct any special inquiry relative to taxation or the tax laws, as may be required by either branch of the Legislature, or by any committee thereof.

Approved May 31, 1895.

INTRODUCTION.

The preceding act, authorizing this inquiry, was not ordered by the legislature to take immediate effect, and therefore did not become operative until the first of September, 1895. Immediately after receiving my appointment, I assumed the duties and began to organize the office for business. There were no records of any kind in the state offices, later than the equalization record of 1891, from which any data could be gained. It was deemed advisable to go back to that period for a starting point. This made it necessary to apply to the county clerks for copies of the proceedings of all the boards of supervisors of the state, relating to the assessment of property, equalizing it in counties, and the levy of taxes for all purposes, subsequent to that year.

In many counties the records were found to be defective, and so badly so that the defects and irregularities could not be supplied. As the law was an innovation, so was the request for the facts and statements necessary to put it in force and many officers plainly refused to furnish the information without compensation. A few counties did pay the clerks and supervisors for the extra work, but many refused and thus compelled me to visit those counties, and copy the records myself. It was a serious defect in the law that it did not provide that copies of records and data should be furnished by county and township officials, as it would have saved much time and considerable expense in making the inquiry.

ASSESSMENTS.

The first step taken in the investigation was as to the methods of supervisors in making their annual assessments, and to ascertain these in such shape as to be able to estimate the accuracy of their work, form an intelligent opinion of their capacity and efficiency, and gain as much information as practicable, the following circular was prepared and sent to every supervisor and assessing officer in the state:

OFFICE OF STATE TAX STATISTICIAN OF MICHIGAN.

LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL.

Hon. JOHN T. RICH, Governor of Michigan:

SIR—I have the honor herewith to submit the following report of my investigation and inquiries concerning the tax system of Michigan as contemplated and authorized by act No. 236, of the laws of 1895, and through you to the legislature and the people of the state.

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

CHARLES V. DE LAND,

State Tax Statistician.

STATE TAX STATISTICIAN.

Act No. 236.

AN ACT to create the office of State Statistician and to define his powers and duties and provide a compensation therefor.

Section 1. The People of the State of Michigan enact, That within thirty days after this act shall take effect the Governor, by and with the consent of the Senate, shall appoint a suitable person to collect and compile the statistics of taxation in this State, and such appointee shall be known as the Tax Statistician. He shall be a citizen of the State, well versed in the tax laws of the State, and a competent accountant. He shall hold his office until the first day of March, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-seven. Said Tax Statistician may appoint such assistants, from time to time, as shall be necessary for the transaction of the business of his office.

Sec. 2. It shall be the duty of the Tax Statistician to ascertain, as fully as is practicable, the actual and the assessed value of the real and personal property within the State which is subject to taxation under the provisions of the general tax law; to make special inquiry into the proportion of mortgages, moneys and credits taxed and untaxed under the assessing laws of this State, and the methods of the assessing officers in regard to the assessment of such property; the character and value of all property which is exempt from taxation and the reasons for such exemption; the value and character of the property belonging to corporations or individuals paying or liable for the payment of specific taxes, and the earning of such corporations or properties; the value of all property owned and held by churches, religious and benevolent and charitable societies, under the laws of this State, which are not taxed; the amount of State, county, municipal or city, township and other local taxes assessed, the amount paid and the amount returned delinquent; the amount of such delinquent taxes which is lost to the State, and its political subdivisions, and so far as practicable the causes and reasons for such loss; and such other facts relative to the sources and collection of the revenue of the State, and of counties, townships, cities, villages and school districts as are pertinent to the inquiry herein authorized and instituted. He shall compile and record the statistics in such a manner as to be able to furnish information relative to the sources of public revenue and the properties assessed and taxes paid in each of the political subdivisions of the State, so far as it is practicable. He shall also ascertain, as far as may be, whether the spirit and letter of the general and specific tax laws are enforced, and if such enforcement results in an equitable and just distribution of the taxes authorized by the various political subdivisions of the State for their support, or wherein lies the failure to secure the full, just and equitable results intended by the enactment of existing laws.

Sec. 3. It shall be the duty of all State, county, township, city, village or school district officers, and of the officers, managers and agents of all corporations organized or doing business within this State, to give said Tax Statistician, or his duly appointed representatives, all reasonable facilities for the examination of the records of their several offices. Any State, county, township, city, village or school district officer, or any officer, agent, manager or employé of any corporation organized or doing business within this State, who shall willfully neglect or refuse to comply with the provisions of this section, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof in any court of competent jurisdiction, shall be punished by a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail for a period not exceeding ninety days, or by both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court.

him in a more thorough discharge of his duties. The law should be so changed as to require every citizen to file a statement of taxable property with the assessor, verified by his oath, taken before some person other than the assessor. This would compel the tax payer to go to the assessor instead of the assessor being compelled to hunt up every tax payer in his district to obtain his consent to be assessed, as is now virtually the case. The inventory should be made more complete and comprehensive, including the most minute details of personal property liable to taxation. Several states have recently made such changes, among others our neighboring state of Indiana. Commenting upon this change, the State Auditor, in his report for 1892, says:

"The first year's operations of the new revenue law has vindicated the wisdom of its passage a thousand fold and the wholesome results attained proclaim it at once the most equitable and the soundest tax measure Indiana has ever known. For the first time in the history of the state the burden of taxation is fairly and equitably borne. For the first time in our history—tax dodging is not only a disreputable, but a losing business. Indeed it is an impossible business, if the taxing authorities possess the ability, courage and honesty to do their whole duty. Never before in the annals of the state has corporate wealth been compelled to bear its just share of the public taxation. Today the dollar of the rich man, the bank, the corporation is compelled to contribute to the public treasury equally with the dollar of the humblest citizen. The new tax law is founded upon the sound doctrine of honest, full value appraisement. One dollar is taxed at one hundred cents, whether invested in lands, products, merchandise, bank capital, factories or luxuries. Under this law millions of heretofore untaxed property has been placed on the tax duplicates. To more fully emphasize the difference between the old law and the new I submit the appraisements which show an increase of taxable values of $397,581,651.00 in favor of the new law. Instead of an annual deficit of half a million dollars under the old law we now have a net surplus of that amount." * * * I see no reason why the tax burden of the people should not be thus reduced at least $250,000.00 per year."

A system of assessments which can bring about such a beneficial change in the taxation of that state is certainly worth the attention of the legislature of this state.

Another glaring and unnecessary fraud upon tax payers is the constant habit of increasing and decreasing the value of the real and personal property of their townships. There is some slight reason for a fluctuation in values of city property, while almost none exists in the case of rural or farm property, aside from a general inflation or depreciation. Yet we find among the oldest settled towns and counties large and unwarranted changes in the assessed value.

There is not a resident of any old settled township who does not know and can form a reasonable opinion of the value of the farms in his township. This value once formed it should be changed only by reason of [illegible]ovements, loss of buildings, or the same influence that effect the [illegible] property of the town.

The real estate assessment of a long settled township should not be changed without some good and substantial reason. In many states the value of real estate, once fixed by the assesors and board of review, remain fixed for a series of years, the assessor making a new list each year, but the assessed value per acre remaining unchanged, the tax payers being charged with improvements or credited with buildings burned or destroyed. Thus a tax payer is assured against any violent change in the tax rate until the next valuation is made. The system seems so rational and just that it hardly needs the word of law to make it custom in our older counties and townships. But investigation proves that this policy does not at all commend itself to the average supervisor. What was he elected for if not to punish his enemies and reward his friends?

An examination of the totals of the assessment rolls of the townships of the state, as returned to this office, show that there are but few towns in which this method of change is not the rule. It is no wonder there is a constant complaint of unequal taxation from all parts of the state, and it will continue so long as this practice is allowed to exist.

The following examples, taken at random from the assessment returns, will show the extent of this evil. The changes are in the value of real estate in the townships named.

Such assessing as these examples illustrate are an outrageous abuse of the discretion of the assessor. It arises out of the prevalent desire to "beat somebody," either in the township or in the equalization by the county board. If the supervisor would only stop to think he would see the rank injustice of such a method both to his township and to many individual tax payers.

But rank as this practice has become in regard to real estate, it is more flagrant in some places in the assessment of personal property. The board of supervisors are powerless to control the assessment of personal, and can only punish the assessor who defies the law by adding to the real estate. This some boards are not willing to do, and so a class of assessors so juggle the personal assessments as to favor their friends, and secure a low apportionment of state and county taxes to their townships. The most flagrant and conspicuous illustration of this is found in Ionia county. As an example we think it worth a place in this report. The tables represent the assessment of personal property in two rural townships, and the whole county for the last five years:

TOWN OF BOSTON, IONIA CO.

Year.	Amt. Assessed.	Increase.	Decrease.
1892	$53,670	.....	$54,120
1893	98,355	$44,685	.....

1893	111,210	$68,960	.....
1894	34,100	.....	77,110
1895	117,440	83,340	.....
1896	119,750	2,310	.....

IONIA COUNTY.

Year.	Amt. Assessed.	Increase.	Decrease.	Difference.
1892	$1,243,335	.....	$661,539	.....
1893	1,719,025	$475,674	.....	$1,137,209
1894	1,168,037	.....	550,988	1,026,658
1895	1,709,882	541,845	.....	1,092,833
1896	1,560,496	.....	149,386	691,231

It would seem as if little or nothing more need be said about the methods of assessing officers. The question is, can a remedy for these glaring inequalities be discovered and applied?

Another and a very glaring error in the assessments is the favoritism shown to large corporations, and especially in the lumber regions of the state. There are instances almost without number where large amounts of property is not assessed. In fact, the history of all the lumbering counties of this state is a continual story of fraud and evasion of taxation. During the session of the state board of equalization, in August last, representatives of these counties stood up and recited their "tales of woe," and when questioned as to the assessment of lumber plants, they were compelled to admit that the valuation was low and fraudulent, but claimed as an offset, that the land was assessed too high, when even that did not average much if any over one dollar an acre.

The tax law of this state is very tender and careful of the supervisor, and is so worded that he is, in fact, shielded by its terms from the probability of harm for neglect or violation of his official duty. The only instance in this state of any attempt at its enforcement has been in Bay county, where the excesses became so flagrant that Judge Maxwell called a grand jury, which indicted the whole board, and some have been tried and found guilty of "wilful" misfesance in office. In these cases sentence was "suspended," so they stand merely as a sort of moral example, rather than a vindication of law and justice.

The law should be changed so as to impose greater danger to the assessor. He should stand responsible for his official acts without the qualifying adjective, "wilful," or the privilege of testifying to his own "intent." There is no good reason for hedging this official with safeguards that are denied to others, either more or less important. If the door stood as wide open to justice in this regard as in many others, the gross violators of law would not all be held as liable only to err in judgment; many would stand in law, as they stand today, in public opinion, convicted of gross and wanton violation of the law.

EQUALIZATION.

The statute provides for the equalization of the value of taxable property between the different counties, by a state board, once in five years. This is important only as it affects the apportionment of the taxes imposed by the legislature for the support of the state. As this is by far the smallest item in taxation in this state it would not seem an overwhelming factor in our tax system, but under the prevailing methods and system it comes into great and undue prominence. At every returning period of equalization new and in some instances questionable methods are adopted by board of supervisors and delegates representing counties to secure a reduction of value of taxable property and corresponding decrease of the amount apportioned to their county. A review of the last three or four quinquennial state equalizations shows these methods to be:

1. A systematic and uniform reduction of the assessment for the year in which the equalization occurs.
2. A similar reduction in the acreage of the county, thus deceiving the state board by showing increased value for the total number of acres as reported.
3. By reducing the equalized valuation of the county many thousands, and in some cases millions, of dollars below the assessed value.
4. The preparation of statistics and exparte statements of interested parties and industries which are calculated to mislead and thus influence the judgment of the state board of equalization.

In order to counteract these undue influences and to enable the state board to fully understand the situation, not from a single year's assessment, but a series of years, at the suggestion of the governor and members of the state board of equalization, this office undertook to gather from the counties a complete record of the assessment of every township and city and the county equalization for each of the four years succeeding the equalization of 1891. These tables being secured, they were remodeled into a new form, showing the original assessment for each year, the rate per acre farm land was assessed; the increase or decrease from the previous year, the value of personal property, the equalization of real estate, the total value of all property as equalized in every township and county, and the increase and decrease for each. This proved an immense work, and involved the use of the whole force of the office for about four months. The results are shown in Part III. of this report, occupying over 350 pages of closely printed figures. This work was of great service to the state board of equalization and of much benefit to the tax payers of numerous counties, as it fully protected them from all influence of short acreage and sudden shrinkages of values.

While these equalization tables are too voluminous for the ordinary reader, or even student of taxation, yet they will be found of great local benefit. The tax payer can study the history of his own town, city or county with both interest and profit, and will not, in almost every instance fail to detect the numerous inherent defects of our tax system. The examples herein before given of fluctuations in values is found upon every page, showing the tax payer plainly the reason his tax rate is constantly fluctuating and changing. And more than that, they contain the evidence that the assessment of personal property is radically defective, not to say dishonest.

These tables, extending, as they do, over the period when the mortgage tax law of 1891 was in force, show fully the disastrous effect of that law upon the assessment of mortgages as a part of the realty value and the great additional burden laid upon real estate owners, in fee, a burden they have not yet recovered from.

But few of the counties made a separate item of valuation of the mortgage interest from the free simple interest in real estate, but these few are enough to show the bad effects of that experiment. These facts will be found set forth in notes to the tables, in Part. III., especially for Branch, Macomb, Oakland and a few other counties. The aggregate result of the first year of the assessment of property of the state under that law was as follows:

Net increase in real estate	$84,541,979 00
Net decrease in personal	32,664,561 00
Difference	$117,206,540 00

This is a net loss of 12½ per cent of the entire personal assessment and a corresponding addition to the tax burden of the realty. The law was enacted to relieve the farmer, but instead became an added burden, because three-fifths of the value of real property, as assessed in 1892, was upon farm property. The passage of that law simply illustrates the danger of experimenting with tax legislation without the most careful and complete investigation, and a well settled basis of authenticated facts for its foundation.

A careful study of these tables will show many interesting facts and examples. The county equalization is, as a rule, a most perfect realization of the celebrated game of chance, "heads, I win, tails, you lose." There is little or no effort made to classify and separate property so as to see if each kind is properly or reasonably assessed. The replies to the circulars sent to supervisors failed to disclose any information of value to this office, and the supposition is, none is put before the local committee or board. We have found but one county in the state which makes a separation in its equalization report between real estate in cities and villages and actual farm lands. This is done in Berrien county, and the assessment shows a steady appreciation in real estate in the cities, villages and country towns each year. This allows of each kind of real property being considered and investigated, and its true cash value estimated and established by itself, and not mixed with the other. The farm property is estimated upon a basis of so much value per acre in each township, and the village or city property according to its cash value added. Thus the value of property as assessed has been more stable, and the state tax rate more uniform and equitable.

But in the majority of counties the supervisors do not like an open and fair method. The more the assessment is jumbled together and made unintelligible the better it suits the purpose of the schemers. It is their policy to be changing every year, so that in the ups and downs, they can obtain some little advantage. The most conspicuous example of this is in Gratiot county, which has changed its equalization from $9,000,000 to $6,000,000 inside of five years, there being a reduction in one year of $2,600,000, a raise the next year of $1,000,000, a decrease of $500,000, and an increase the next of $500,000. There can be no other object than to gain an unfair advantage in this, and a careful figuring of percentages fully uncovers the whole scheme. In the ups and downs, the amount taken off and again put on certain towns varies a trifle. To one town it shows a gain of 5 per cent of the aggregate, and yet that small gain saved that town the sum of $600 in the apportionment of the state and county taxes in a single year. Of course these taxes went upon other towns, all poorer and less able to pay, but they were influenced in discharging a public duty by that highest of modern political sentiments—"anything for a change." Taxpayers would fare far better if there was greater care, more conservatism and fewer changes.

There are eight counties which have, for the past six or more years, equalized upon a fixed basis, each year—Allegan, Eaton, Jackson, Kent, Livingston, Montcalm, Van Buren and Washtenaw. The assessments, as a whole, show greater regularity than in others. This system acts as a check upon radical changes, particularly in personal assessments, as the supervisor knows that every dollar he throws off upon personal, must necessarily be added to the average and aggregate of his real assessment.

In order to facilitate a fairer equalizing of values, the present law should be so changed as to require a uniform and specified form of reporting and comparing the assessments. Each supervisor should be required to separate the kinds of property into a few general divisions. In townships the value per acre as assessed should be reported, and acreage value made the basis of equalization in all cases outside cities and villages. The increases and decreases from last year should be given in the committee report, and all other information necessary for the intelligent tax payer to fully understand how his property interests are being treated.

The state has placed a value upon each county as a basis for assessing the state tax. When that tax is apportioned, it is given out that the state tax rate is one mill or more upon the dollar. The county board equalizes much below the state valuation, and the tax payer finds that his tax rate upon his receipt is three or four mills, or more, upon the dollar. He is unable to understand it, and at once concludes that the state officers are deceiving him and the public, and that the state is levying an exorbitant tax, and he immediately joins the great army of reformers who clamor against the legislature and the state. He does not know or understand that his tax is spread on his property as assessed by his supervisor, and that the assessment is say 20 per cent below the county equalization, which in turn is 25 per cent below the state equalization. A great many inquiries are being received constantly bearing upon this very discrepancy, and it is in many cases impossible to explain to the satisfaction of the tax payer. If the practice was that in all cases the full cash value was assessed, and the law required the county to be equalized at not less than the state valuation, this apparent discrepancy and contradiction would be removed. It might prove good public policy to require the local or county equalization to equal that made by the state. It would not require the raising of any more taxes, and would reduce the rate per cent, thus making a more favorable impression upon property owners and business men outside the state, than the present system.

Equalization is much more of a theory than a fact, at best. The object is to equitably distribute taxation, but it too often performs a contary function. As an inherent part of the tax levying machinery, it is almost as much of a failure as "cash value" assessment. Many counties utterly disregard not only its merits, but its intent. In not a few instances great bodies of taxes have been set aside by the courts because even the statutory form was not observed by the board of supervisors. While it has been held that the action of the board of supervisors in equalizing the assessment cannot be reviewed by the courts, yet in several instances their proceedings have been declared fraudulent, and the taxes apportioned thereon declared irregular and illegal, to the great loss of the towns, county and state.

The subject is one that should receive greater and more studious attention from public officials and from tax payers. To this end this compilation will be found very valuable, and thus render much assistance in correcting existing defects and irregularities in our tax system.

Much information upon this subject will be found in the report of the proceedings of the state board of equalization, which contains all the arguments made before the board by the representatives of the several counties, as well as other important matter.

TAXATION.

The laws of this state provide for a singularly wide variety of taxation, and the taxing power is divided into more subdivisions than would seem necessary. For the purpose of this report we shall group the levy of taxes under the following heads:

STATE PURPOSES.

The state government is supported exclusively by tax upon the property of the state as assessed by the supervisors and assessing officers. The matter of equalization only affects the distribution of the amount to be assessd among the counties and their inter-municipal subdivisions. The legislature fixes the amount of the state tax at its biennial sessions for each period of two years. The Auditor General apportions the state tax to the different counties, and the board of supervisors sub-divides the portion alloted to it among the cities, wards and townships.

COUNTY PURPOSES.

The boards of supervisors are charged with the responsibility of providing for the needs of the counties. In some respects their powers are limited to raising fixed amounts, and in others their power is practically unlimited.

TOWNSHIP PURPOSES.

The statute covers a large number of taxes which may be levied by townships, and wisely provides that they shall only be authorized by vote of the electors at the annual town meeting. The principal exceptions are the mill tax for school purposes, highway labor tax, drain taxes and a few items of minor importance which result from special legislation.

MUNICIPAL TAXES.

This class is confined to cities and villages, and the authority for their levy is found in villages and cities of the fourth class in the general laws for their incorporation, and in all other cases in the special acts of incorporation.

DISTRICT TAXES.

These cover the principal bulk of the school taxes which are voted at the annual school meetings, except in a part of the incorporated cities and in road districts, which are levied under the general highway law.

In some respects the laws authorizing some of this wide range of taxation are very complex. For instance there are three methods of taxation for the support of the poor, one providing for their maintainance by the county, another is a mixed system, part county and part local or township, and also a township system. The laws relating to the levy of drain, ditch and road taxes are equally complicated. An economical system of taxation would suggest great consolidation and a more direct responsibility to the people taxed than a portion of these statutes now admit.

The heaviest burden of taxation arises from municipal government, and this presents the great and growing problem of the future as well as of the present. In my judgment the failure of economic municipal government is due to lack of uniformity in city charters. If laws can be devised, giving to cities a general form of organization, and imposing upon all municipalities the responsibility of local taxation, subject to a reasonable limit in the use of the taxing power, it would be an improvement on the present system, and release the state from the largest part of its legislative duty. The failure of this attempt two years ago was a matter of regret to nearly all who have given this important subject the most mature consideration and investigation.

The next heaviest burden is the taxation for school purposes. As this is a matter so nearly in the direct control of the tax payers themselves, we shall not offer any suggestions as to its restriction.

Following this is the taxation in townships. A careful investigation of the details of township taxation in Part II. of this report, will enable the taxpayers to see just what evils exist, where they exist, and to apply the remedy in their own local government.

County taxes come next in the list, and in the majority of the counties of the state, the levy does not seem to be wasteful or extravagant. Considering the important position the county holds in our system of government, and the many duties and responsibilities imposed upon supervisors, their part of the system is more economical, in the main, than in the minor subdivisions. Still the statements given show a considerable number of counties where there is ample need for more careful use of the taxing power.

The state tax is the lightest part of the tax burden, and yet, strange as it may seem, it comes in for the largest share of popular suspicion and denunciation. Michigan has been an economical as well as a liberal state. An eminent writer has said that "prudent liberality is judicious economy." When we consider the number, importance and success of the numerous and varied institutions of Michigan, with the resultant effect upon the moral, intellectual, charitable and social conditions of the whole people, the results are a complete vindication of its judicious economy and prudent liberality. In comparison with the entire sisterhood of states in the Union, the percentage of state taxation places her as the fifth in the list. As a matter of public interest, we insert here the following table, compiled by Mr. E. J. Wright, from the United States census reports of 1890:

Comparison of Assessment and Taxation in the several States and Territories.

While there has been an almost unlimited amount of public discussion of the subject of taxes and taxation by all classes of citizens, in all sections of the commonwealth, there has never been gathered or published any reliable statistics upon the important subject. Due publicity and great prominence has annually been given to the apportionment of the state tax, local newspapers have heralded and commented upon county affairs, and the superintendent of public instruction has grouped the statistics of the expenses of school in his annual reports, which are seldom perused or used by the general public. Believing that a full and complete compilation of all the kinds and amounts of taxes levied for all purposes would be of great interest as well as of great importance to the public, and was really the most important feature of this inquiry, the office began, at an early date after it was established, an inquiry in this direction. That it was begun and has been prosecuted under great difficulties, goes without saying. Section 37 of the general tax law gives specific directions as to the levying and recording of the levy of all taxes. After providing for the proper apportionment of state and county taxes, it goes on to provide and determine what local taxes shall be put upon the tax rolls. It says:

"They (the board of supervisors) shall direct that such of the several amounts of money proposed to be raised for township, school, highway, drain and all other purposes, as shall be authorized by law, be spread upon the assessment roll of the proper townships, wards and cities. Such action and direction shall be entered in full upon the records of the proceedings of the board, and shall be deemed final as to the levy and assessment of all such taxes."

Strange as it may seem, although this law has been upon the statute books for years, fully one-third of the county boards of supervisors had not adopted or complied with its provisions. The omissions were not confined to any class of counties nor any section of the state, but has prevailed in many of the oldest as well as some of the newer counties. This omission to comply with the plain provisions of the tax law made it necessary for me to visit in person, or employ agents to secure the tax statements from twenty-eight different counties in which these details were mostly copied from the warrants on the returned tax rolls in the office of the county treasurers. And here it is proper to remark, that it was a matter of great surprise to note the large number of tax rolls that were really of no legal value, being defective in many vital points, and how the town and city treasurers managed to collect the taxes is only accounted for in the fact that the people were utterly ignorant of the informality of the rolls. This is a glaring proof of the carelessness and incompetency of many of our county and township officials, and it might not be amiss to so amend the law as to make it a misdemeanor for any county or town officer to be guilty of such neglect. It would certainly be only for public safety to make such officers pecuniarily responsible for any losses that may occur by reason of such neglect. No supervisor should proceed to fill out his roll until it is properly certified to him, with all the blanks filled as required by law. The signature of the clerk, or chairman of the board to a blank is no authority to him to assess taxes of which he has no other evidence than his own personal knowledge or memoranda. No treasurer should ever accept or receipt for a tax roll without it is footed, proved and balanced, nor without a perfect and sufficient warrant. Without these safeguards he may become involved in serious trouble, and his best efforts to collect an otherwise just and proper tax may be defeated. The utmost care and attention to these details is necessary to ensure safety and the full protection of both the officer and the public. The state and county has an interest in these rolls and taxes after they have passed from the town officers, and the sale of the lands and final enforcement of the tax lien is very often affected and defeated by reason of the careless and improvident methods of county and town officers in these important matters.

The result of this part of the inquiry is given in full in the tables contained in Part II. of this report. While these tables are not absolutely correct, they disclose the principal items of taxation in every town, city and county in the state. Starting in 1892 and covering the succeeding three years, they furnish a basis for an average. The first two years are defective in not procuring all the items. The "dog tax" is not always included in the statement made to the county clerk, and when the tables are compiled from the proceedings of the boards of supervisors the "excess of roll" and the "delinquent highway labor tax" are not included. When the figures were taken from the warrants all these items are included. While referring you to the tabular statements for details the general results of the inquiry are embodied in the following tables:

The following is the aggregate and average of taxation for all purposes for the four years:

	Aggregate.	Average.
State tax	$8,051,179 82	$2,012,794 95
County tax	10,696,281 84	2,674,070 46
School tax	20,533,146 83	5,133,286 71
Township and city taxes	30,317,002 55	7,579,250 64
Liquor taxes	7,644,969 64	1,911,242 41
Totals	$77,242,580 68	$19,310,645 17

The enormous aggregate of taxes will be no more a surprise to you and the people than it was to me. If the legislature should levy a per capita tax of $8.61 2-3 upon the inhabitants of the state there would be an outburst of indignation and denunciation from all, perhaps danger of insurrection, and yet that is the average tax rate, and for which the state is responsible for only 90 cents per capita, leaving $7.71 as the self-imposed taxes of the people. A further analyses of these taxes is made, showing the specific amount raised for each of the special objects of taxation, for each year, as follows:

As the feeling is extensively prevalent among farmers that an undue proportion of taxation is imposed upon the rural and farming districts of the state, the incorporate cities of the state have been separated from these districts and a careful and accurate division of assessed value and taxes made, which follows, showing not only the assessed value and taxes, but the per cent of each:

No account is taken in the above statements of the taxes levied in incorporated villages, which will be shown in another part of the report, nor have we included any part of the primary school interest fund, which is apportioned by the superintendent of public instruction, as it comes from specific taxes on railroad and other corporations, and is not a part of the direct taxation of the people.

The total expenses of the public schools of the state, as shown by these figures, are as follows:

Year.	From taxes.	Primary school interest fund.	Total.
1892	$4,956,827 66	$1,009,099 40	$5,965,927 06
1893	4,969,881 74	997,124 38	5,967,006 12
1894	5,115,359 96	1,021,001 47	6,136,361 43
1895	5,491,077 47	1,000,772 47	6,491,849 53

Another important tax factor to the people arises from the highway system of the state, by and under which a highway labor and poll tax is assessed and expended by the township officials, and never finds its way to the regular tax roll, except that small fraction that is returned by the highway commissioner as delinquent. As this tax is not levied in this form in cities and some of the larger incorporated villages it must be partly estimated against the valuation of the rural districts. From the reports made by supervisors we find this is based upon one day's work upon different amounts, running all the way from $100 to $800 of the valuation. As near as can be estimated this will average about one day (or $1.00) for each $500 of valuation as assessed. Upon this basis we compute the highway labor tax of the state as follows:

Year.	Valuation.	Labor tax.
1892	$583,535,120	$1,167,062 00
1893	755,890,479	1,511,780 00
1894	560,801,465	1,121,603 00
1895	546,868,173	1,093,336 00

Adding these amounts to the highway taxes already included in the preceding tables, and we find that the public expenditure for road making in the state, outside the incorporated cities, for the four years has been as follows:

Year.	County road tax.	Township road tax.	Highway labor.	Total.
1892	$ 7,810 31	$1,114,753 65	$1,167,062 00	$2,289,625 96
1893	70,817 06	1,103,595 64	1,511,780 00	2,686,192 70
1894	38,963 55	997,198 56	1,121,603 00	2,157,765 11
1895	38,151.43	1,005,385 64	1,093,336 00	2,136,873 07
County road tax in cities applied outside city for same time				104,662 14
Total expenditure for highway purposes, four years				$9,375,518 98

In view of the present agitation for better roads we venture the suggestion that a more economical and prudent application of the expenditure of the moneys already provided and being expended upon our public highways would be more generally satisfactory than any increase of taxation. A few judicious amendments to the highway laws might accomplish such a result, notably giving highway commissioners power to designate more fully how and when highway labor shall be performed, and the cutting down of the allowance of so much of the labor tax as is now allowed for tools upon road work, and the encouragement for using improved machines in road making, through township ownership of such appliances and their joint use by all the road districts in the township.

EXEMPTIONS.

The law requires the Tax Statistician to enquire into "the character and value of all property which is exempt from taxation, and the reasons for such exemption." This is a difficult and tedious work, and but little time could be taken from the general work as undertaken, to comply with the provision. In the blank sent to the supervisors, questions were propounded to draw out as much information on this subject as possible. If all the supervisors had filled and returned the blanks, a reasonable estimate could have been made, but unfortunately a great many of these officers failed to return the blanks at all, many others were so imperfectly filled as to be practically useless, while many others were disposed to be "too funny" to impart information in a shape to be beneficial. The mass of exempt property is in the cities of the state, and no attempt is made in more than two or three of the incorporated cities to keep any record of property that is exempt; in fact, the city of Detroit is the only one that has furnished such a list. The supervisors and assessors professed a willingness to furnish the information if properly paid, but as they estimated the cost at from $25 to $300 for each city, the funds at the disposal of the office would not warrant the undertaking, even if it had been advisable. An abstract of the replies received will be found in the appendix, and we will venture the estimate that nearly if not two-fifths of the visible property of the state, including corporations paying specific taxes, building and loan associations, and other beneficiaries of the state, are entirely exempt from the operation of our general tax laws.

In this connection it is respectfully suggested that the general tax law be so amended as to require all supervisors and assessors to enter upon their rolls, annually, a complete list of all real and personal property claimed or exempt from taxation in their respective assessment districts, with the cash value annexed, and also an annotation of the statute and purpose under which exemption is claimed. This seems the only feasible mode for arriving at a correct statement of exempt property. It will also correctly account for all of the property in each assessing district, which is not now the case, and furnish the public many facts of great importance upon which to base economic and financial legislation. If statistics are valuable at all, they should be reliable, and conform to other values alongside of which they are situated, and the appraisal of all property should be so made as to afford ready and fair comparison. We have many laws that carry exemption to vast bodies of property which are founded more upon sentiment, private interest under cover of charity or public benefit, and thus withdraw large values from taxation in a manner but little short of a fraud upon tax payers. An exhibit of such property, real and personal, upon the tax rolls, subject to the public inspection and criticism would undoubtedly be the means of correcting many errors in legislation, and some of the most serious defects and inequities of our tax system.

The exempt real property in the city of Detroit, as listed by the board of assessors, is about $30,500,000. A comparative estimate of the other cities of the state, based upon the assessed valuation and population combined, will increase this exemption of realty to about $80,000,000. Add to this the large amount of personal exemption, and the aggregate cannot fall much short of $350,000,000 in the whole state.

VALUE OF PROPERTY.

The aggregate value of property of a state or nation is always hard to find, and is usually based upon the census rather than upon any data of assessment and taxation. The actual value of property is seldom reached in full by the most accurate census reports, because it is not based upon actual inventory at cost, and the mass of citizens are conservative in estimating the value of their own property. It is only by aggregating the values of the different census schedules that any fair estimate of the whole is obtained, and there are liabilities to make errors in those. From the last data at hand there is but little doubt that the real value of the property of this state is not less than two and a half times the assessed value, and this value is so distributed that part escaping taxation is very largely in the cities and villages of the state.

An estimate of the value of the whole property of the state based upon all the reports accessible, census, commercial and of corporations on file in the state offices, and of banks, loan and insurance companies, indicate the following as the probable value of property in this state, at the present time, and at the present depressed condition of prices:

True value of real estate, buildings and improvements upon the same	$1,080,628,998 00
True value of real estate, with buildings and improvements, exempt from taxation under laws of this state	67,153,995 00
Actual cash value of real estate	$1,147,782,793 00
Live stock and farm implements on farms	74,334,573 00
Value of farm products on hand other than live stock and improvements	81,279,000 00
Capital invested in manufacturing and mining products under state laws	252,256,205 00
Presonal property and products of corporations as above	237,857,772 50
Mercantile corporations and partnerships, stocks, household furniture and miscellaneous	525,350,175 00
Banks and trust companies, stock, surplus and fixtures, less real estate	30,601,406 75
Building and loan associations and insurance companies	18,862,985 50
Total	$2,419,785,873 25

No account is taken in this estimate of the amount of money loaned by persons outside of the state to persons living and doing business in the state, nor of the reverse, as it is thought the one will nearly counterbalance the other, although it may possibly show a small balance against our own people, but from such investigation as we have been able to make we are satisfied that this balance will not reduce the above aggregate below the sum of two thousand two hundred and fifty millions of dollars.

Of the real estate of the state we find that 42 per cent, or 15,296,078 acres are returned as farm property; 21 per cent, or 7,585,633 acres as standing timber, and 20 per cent, or 7,455,421 acres as pine plains, swamps and waste lands, while 5 per cent, or 820,741 acres is set down as urban property and 12 per cent, or 4,663,041, are exempt state and United States lands.

Or 47 1-3 per cent of the cash value of all the property of the State after deducting $720.572,072 for exemptions.

A careful comparison of the census returns for 1894 of the townships of the state shows the following as the values reported by the enumerators:

Cash value of real estate by census		$496,528,349
Cash value of farm personal by census		71,310,043
Total		$567,838,392
Assessed value of same towns in 1894 after deducting cities and villages:
Real estate	$405,221,401
Personal	35,933,355
		441,154,756
Assessed minus census value		$126,683,636

Deducting this sum from the total of the unassessed property of the state and it leaves a balance of $626,520,404 of unassessed property in the cities and villages, which strongly emphasizes the discrimination made against the suburban property of the state.

In concluding this part of the report we desire to again emphasize the duty of the legislature to so amend the general tax law as to secure the assessment of a larger portion of the property of the state, as a matter of justice to all classes of tax payers, and to more fairly represent, not only the real wealth, but the very low rate of taxation that is needed to support the state upon the cash value of all the property.

CORPORATIONS.

The act creating this office imposes duties relating to corporations of a necessary and important character, but no time has yet been found to comply with that part of its requirements. Nearly one-third of all the general laws of the state are for the organization, management and benefit of corporations. They cover every kind of business, religious, charitable and social relations of life. "Their name is legion," and their purposes almost infinite. The articles and reports, so far as reports are required, are filed in the office of the Secretary of State, but the laws do not require any lists to be published nor any information as to their purpose, intent, responsibility or character. These documents represent nearly or quite eight hundred millions of live capital, and perhaps ten times as much that is dead. There seems to be a looseness about this department that is hardly compatible with the public interest or safety. In these days of trusts, swindles, tax dodging and all sorts of "tricks that are vain," to acquire rights, avoid personal responsibility and cloak business in lawful mystery, it would seem the law should provide for the publication of a complete list of all corporations, and also of their annual reports, so the public may be benefited or protected as the case may require, from an improper use of both corporate law and corporate privileges.

A list of the capital stock of twenty-five hundred of these corporations was made in the Secretary's office, at my request, upon which the estimates in the preceding pages are made, but as this covers only about one-third or one-fourth the total number of corporations in the state, your honor can see at a glance that at least a whole year will be necessary to investigate and codify the information the law seems to indicate as advisable and necessary. From the brief examination made into this subject I am fully satisfied it would well repay the expense of a most exhaustive examination, and result, if the work is properly applied, in placing many millions of dollars upon the tax rolls of the different counties.

SPECIFIC TAXES.

The law requires me also to report upon the character and value of all property paying "specific" in lieu of general taxes, and the earnings of such properties, which we regret to say has not been fully accomplished this year. The annual report of the Auditor General, for 1895, contains lists of these companies, (see pages 71 to 86), which contain a part of the information asked for up to June 30, 1895, the totals of which are epitomized as the best information we can furnish at this time:

It is proper to state here that the report for the year ending June 30, 1896, will show a large reduction in the amount due from this class of taxes.

The question of specific taxes is one that has received a large share of attention in this state, and is one of great importance. The constitution of the state expressly declares to what uses these taxes shall be put, and under present conditions they are applied, so far as necessary, in paying the interest upon the educational trust funds, the balance to go into and form part of the primary school interest fund. This provision has been held by the great majority of the people to be a wise and beneficient application of this resource, and through its operations an average sum of about one million dollars has been distributed over the whole state, and used to sustain the primary schools. Whether it is wise to disturb or change this policy is one the people must decide for themselves through amendment of the constitution.

A considerable sum of the specific taxes now carried upon the books of the state were assessed upon corporations now insolvent, and there is little or no hope of their ever being collectable. Perhaps it would be wise for the legislature to make some provision for settlement or car cellation of such taxes, and thus remove the necessity for carrying them upon the account books of the state, and republishing the lists in each recurring annual report.

The small amounts of taxes paid by plank road companies, some of which place a very high value upon their franchises, and the entire absence of street railway, traction roads, and some other classes of corporations, which are supposed to pay specific taxes, should attract attention to the methods of their incorporation and taxation. None of these kinds of corporations are subject to state supervision, and they exist legally, a sort of free commoner, it might be wise for the legislature to correct this public mistake, and place them under the direct control of one of the state commissions.

FRANCHISES.

The subject of corporations leads naturally to the consideration of the value of the franchises they convey and the interest of the public therein. It has become a "fad" with the legal profession and the courts to dwell very largely upon the "value" of franchises or corporate privilege, and it is now their policy to regard all such grants as an exceedingly valuable property. Indeed, it is safe to say they are held to be the most sacred of any of the rights of property. It follows then that the legislature should guard very carefully all provisions of law looking to the grant of franchises. The custom has been to pass these corporate laws solely in the interest of the business or men soliciting them. The mass of the laws creating corporations are very loosely drawn, and are devoid of those conservative reserved rights that should protect the people. The theory is that the courts must construe them, and thus protect the people. Unfortunately this theory does not, generally, conform to the fact. The constant tendency of judicial decisions is in favor of the corporations, and lessens the rights, privileges and powers of the people. The only benefit the people receive is the payment of a very small franchise fee, and when this is deposited the state treasury, all further claim of the public is cancelled in the mind of the corporators. All the cities of the state are endowed with large powers to grant franchises, and that this vast power is grossly abused, is not deniable. Franchises carrying rights worth thousands and millions of dollars are granted by boards of aldermen, binding the people for thirty years, for which the solicitors or buyers give absolutely nothing—to the public—in return. It is painfully apparent that the people have not been educated to a proper appreciation of the value of public franchises. The public have not appreciated the fact that these franchises are assets upon which they have an equal right to realize a profit, as well as the corporators. They innocently assume that when corporations ask for franchises for public purposes or service, they are asked for the public benefit. The argument is always made that they are for the benefit of "the dear people," for the public convenience, solely. This is the enforced popular view; enforced by those soliciting franchises, by their attorneys, agents and money, when necessary. But the public finds, in due time, that they have been deceived. And even after having thus found, they are almost straightway again deceived by the promoters of the next new scheme, and thus the evil repeats itself without end.

The state and the cities are entitled to a fair compensation for all public franchises which they grant. The laws passed by the legislature should show a restrictive, rather than a liberal tendency in this respect.

No municipal charter should be granted that will allow its governing power to grant any franchise that does not return to the public a fair equivalent or that releases it from its proportionate share of taxation, and all other public burdens. The day is fast passing away when tax payers will quietly submit to the free disposal of valuable franchises—the real assets of the people.

RAILROADS.

The subject of taxation of railroads is a separate and distinct subdivision of the question which has long pressed itself upon public attention. The complication of this question by the continued existence of a few special charters, granted in the early history of the state, and literally forced upon the public during a period of depression, amounting to almost absolute distress, has resulted in depriving the state of a large amount of revenue, and defeating the public wishes and efforts to secure their just rights and a fair and reasonable control of gigantic corporations, which to a considerable degree have become the governing instead of the governed property of the state. The fact that the charters of these companies limits the power of the people to change existing conditions to a two-thirds vote of the members of both houses of the legislature gives them an equality in the right of "eminent domain" of the people, placing their exceptional franchises upon the same basis as the initial right of changing the constitution itself. This extraordinary power has been freely exercised, not only as regards their own corporate rights, but in controlling legislative action looking to constitutional changes. Just how the continuance of a condition that makes such special provisions for the preservation of corporate rights to a few corporations over all other existing subjects of legislation, which are subject to the will of the majority, is to be accounted for, is not apparent, unless upon the legal traditional doctrine that franchises are contracts, par excellance, too sacred to be changed, no matter what the public interests may be or how disastrously they may be affected. The time may come when new light will dawn upon the legal mind and the great doctrine of public policy and self-preservation may assume a place among the equities of government and its relations with and to the people, who are the government, and not to the corporations, who are created by the government.

There is no doubt that the feeling that these special charters should be done away with, and the railroad system of the state be placed under general laws is rapidly increasing. Whether it is advisable to press this by a direct act of repeal or through constitutional amendment is a debatable question. The first will, of course, bring the question of adjudicating rights affected before state courts and the state legislature, a priori, subject to appeal to the national tribunals. The latter would remove all power of judicial determination from our state courts and leave its adjustment, if breach of contract was claimed, to the federal courts. The hindrance to a repeal of these charters is the great bug-a-boo of damages for breach of contract. This is magnified by the corporators and their attorneys and agents into vast sums and the entailing of millions of damages and taxation is the habitued ghost that is constantly shadowed to the public gaze. Such a picture, painted in the interest of the corporators is liable to be too highly colored. It is hardly supposable that in case of repeal, by either method, that the corporators would attempt, unless a gross injustice was done them, which is not a supposable case, to press unreasonable claims, in view of the danger to be apprehended from a state and a people made enragedly inimical by their demands and having legislative power to so restrict their businesss revenues as to amount to practical confiscation, if such an alternative was forced upon them.

The following table shows the taxable earnings, taxable earnings per mile of road, total taxes paid, tax per mile of road and per cent of taxation of the railroads of the state for eleven years, compiled from the reports of the railroad commissioner, from 1885 to 1896 inclusive:

Year.	Total taxable earnings for each year.	Taxable earnings per mile of road.	Total taxes paid each year.	Taxes per mile of road.	Per cent of taxation.
1885	$25,497,866 86	$4,803 58	$599,519 50	$112 95	2.35
1886	27,574,729 35	4,934 85	650,472 14	116 83	2.30

* Tax based on assessment valuation.

In estimating the equities of this class of taxation the rate of tax per mile should be compared with the rate of earnings per mile, thus, Massachusetts, per cent of earnings to tax per mile, 5.95.2; Michigan, 2.54; difference 3.41.2. The greater the rate of earnings per mile the greater the rate of profit, and hence the increased ability to pay more tax. The cost to run an empty train is nearly equal to running a loaded one. The roads in the older states show a much larger number of passengers and a greater amount of freight per mile than in Michigan. Upon the basis of "actual cost" of the railroads of this state, as given in the reports of the railroad commissioner, the present taxation is nearly or quite equal to the average taxation of other property, but if we add to the cost of stock actually paid in, the bonded debt, all of which represents money invested, the rate of tax is only about one-half that borne by the other property of the state.

For information in respect to the laws and methods of other states for taxing railroads you are referred to the last report of Railroad Commissioner S. R. Billings, where it can be found in a condensed but easily understood form. For many valuable statistics and information upon this subject you are also referred to the thirteenth annual report of the bureau of labor statistics, wherein Commissioner C. H. Morse treats this subject very fully, including taxation and other matters of general and special interest. Annual report for 1896, pages 285 to 318.

The conditions peculiar to location, climate, competition and the public convenience and necessities all enter more largely into this question of taxing railroads than any other form of property, and should all receive careful attention at the hands of the legislature and the public.

STREET RAILWAYS.

The statistics in regard to street railways are very meagre, and the few reports they are required to make furnish little real information of value. As near as we have been able to learn there are about thirty-five of these corporations in the state. The capital stock of those reporting was $7,722,000; cost of construction, $4,055,341; amount of bonded debt, $9,596,610; taxes paid in 1895, (only nine companies reporting as paying any taxes whatever), $42,314.00. In view of this showing, the legislature should be able to see the necessity of passing laws placing this class of public corporations under the direct control of the commissioner of railroads, and providing an effective mode of securing their proper taxation.

MUNICIPAL TAXATION.

The proper, efficient and economical management of cities is one of the unsolved problems of our system of government. In no other country in the world is so much money disbursed for so small permanent results. Volumes have been written upon the subject, but no adequate or feasible method has been so far suggested to take the place of the present system of local incorporation. Two attempts have been made in this state to provide general laws for the incorporation of cities, the same as exists for villages. The last one succeeded so far as the smaller cities were concerned, with an optional clause, which in many instances defeated the objects of that law. One of the great obstacles to settled and economical municipal government is too much legislation—the ease with which amendments and changes are made in city charters. It is the rule to pass local bills because the local authorities ask for their passage. The legislature seldom stops to inquire into the ultimate results of such change, as affects taxation or any other interest of the people. The temporary want is supplied only to be changed or repealed at the next session. A general law could not be made the subject of such radical changes. Once the affairs of the cities are adjusted to it, they would all move along together with the same machinery, in harmony. Their systems of taxation and public improvements would all be governed by harmonious laws, and there could not exist the gross inequality in taxation which prevails under the present system. The tabulated forms in Part II. of this report, give the details of taxation of all the cities of the state; omitting the important items of "special assessments," which covers the outlays for sewers, street paving, street openings, sidewalks and some other sums that do not appear upon the general tax levy or rolls, and which would swell the aggregate very largely in some of the cities. There are now seventy-five incorporated cities in the state, and the gross amount of expenditures, including the one-half of liquor taxes which are a part of their revenue, and less the sum of "special assessment" taxes, has been as follows:

Year.	Regular tax levy.	One-half liquor tax.	Total.
1892	$5,230,825 90	$658,698 47	$5,889,524 37
1893	5,260,069 86	667,243 61	5,927,313 47
1894	5,408,782 30	615,977 82	6,024,760 12
1895	5,287,996 64	637,459 87	5,925,456 57

As another illustration of the cost of municipal government, we have figured out the cost per capita of the regular tax levy for each city in each year, less than the liquor tax and special assessments, which will be found in the appendix to this part of the report.

The plain inference from these statistics is that the legislature should act upon more conservative lines in granting the privileges of taxation to municipalities. If these cities were required to raise all the revenue they are reasonably entitled to from franchises, privileges, licenses, etc., the burden might be made lighter upon the property owners. So long as municipal government is left at the mercy of our modern "commercialism," there is not much hope for reform. The local government touches the citizen not only more closely, but more expensively, than either the state or national, and is more nearly under his personal control, and it would seem that no great extravagance should exist that is not desired or assisted by the majority of those most directly and locally interested. The people should first learn to help themselves, relying upon the legislature for such general powers and limitations as experience has shown to be necessary for governmental protection.

COUNTY TAXES.

The aggregate of taxation in counties, as shown in the statements in Part II. of this report, seem very reasonable compared with the expense of running our cities and townships. There are a few things connected with county affairs that might be simplified, and promote economy. One most prominent matter is the tendency to multiply judicial districts. Already a number of counties constitute an entire judicial circuit, and the expenses of the courts are very large. This increase is due to the fact that when the district is small the tendency is to procrastinate business and greatly prolong trials. The judge has plenty of time, and the lawyers have plenty of excuses for consuming time. Court is in session nearly all the time, requiring the constant attendance of court officers and a considerable increase in judicial expenses, with no corresponding benefit to the people. It is also a heavy tax upon litigants, as the loss of time to them, the per diem of witnesses and lawyers is increased and thus costs accumulate, while justice, or at least a decision of the case, is greatly delayed. Our laws and our courts should both be so constructed and used as to secure celerity instead of delay in judicial proceedings, but the tendency for the last ten years in this state has been in the contrary direction.

The existence of duplicate methods of caring for the poor, the construction of highways, drains and ditches all tend to increase the number of public officials, and aggravate the public expenses.

A board of three county auditors who could meet monthly to audit accounts, would be an improvement upon the present county system of auditing by the full board of supervisors, the latter being left only the duty of equalizing the tax rolls and apportioning taxes, and a few other statutory duties.

Then again there are too many counties. A glance at the last state equalization shows seven counties equalized at less than one million dollars each, all decreasing in valuation. The list, with the equalized value for the last ten years, is as follows:

County.	As assessed by the supervisors.
	1886.	1891.	1896.
Alcona	$1,359,160 00	$820,718 00	$527,979 00
Lake	1,752,715 00	1,226,218 00	870,360 00
Montmorency	1,002,518 00	710,000 00	547,712 00
Ontonagon	3,740,000 00	1,552,556 00	1,487,255 00
Oscoda	786,000 00	471,000 00	445,000 00
Presque Isle	1,202,482 00	1,005,001 00	878,002 00
Roscommon	1,063,300 00	1,005,000 00	799,902 00

County.	As equalized by the State board.
	1886.	1891.	1896.
Alcona	$2,500,000 00	$1,500,000 00	$850,000 00
Lake	2,000,000 00	1,500,000 00	750,000 00
Montmorency	1,250,000 00	1,000,000 00	600,000 00
Ontonagon	3,750,000 00	2,000,000 00	750,000 00
Oscoda	1,000,000 00	1,000,000 00	500,000 00
Presque Isle	1,250,000 00	1,500,000 00	750,000 00
Roscommon	1,500,000 00	1,500,000 00	500,000 00

The population of these counties was:

	1884.	1890.	1894.
Alcona	4,023	5,309	5,411
Lake	7,468	6,505	5,895
Montmorency	855	1,487	2,435
Ontonagon	4,836	3,756	6,873
Oscoda	1,374	1,904	1,805
Presque Isle	4,064	4,678	5,910
Roscommon	2,588	2,033	1,657

The propriety of burdening so small a number of people and so light property valuation with the expense of county government is very questionable, and we venture the suggestion that some of these or other counties should be disorganized and attached to adjoining counties. Some of these changes would undoubtedly be beneficial to the counties and the state. Alcona could be divided, the two south tiers of towns attached to Iosco and the two north tiers to Alpena county. Oscoda county could be similarly divided between Ogemaw and Montmorency, and Crawford between Otsego and Roscommon, thus making a symmetrical tier in the map and greatly strengthening the several county organizations in population and valuation. Lake county should be disorganized and the west half attached to Mason and the east half to Osceola county, Presque Isle divided between Alpena and Cheboygan, while Keweenaw should be attached to Houghton, and all that part of Houghton south of range fifty-one north should be added to Ontonagon county. As any act providing for such changes could only take effect subsequent to the next general election, or when the terms of the present county officers expire the legislature and people will have ample time to consider and discuss the advisability of these suggestions and some others which may be found equally advisable.

TOWNSHIP TAXATION.

As all township taxes are fixed by the voters of the township at the annual town meetings in April, wherever this class of expenses are excessive the blame rests solely within the township. In the old and well settled townships this class of taxation is not excessive, but in the new parts of the state, where the bona fide settlers are few and the real estate largely owned by non-residents it will be noticed the taxes are very large. There are nearly two hundred townships where the population ranges from fifty to two hundred persons and from sixteen to forty voters, and in these towns the local taxes average the highest of any towns in the state. The laws for organizing new towns should be so amended as to require a minimum resident population large enough to guaranty protection of non-residents against fraud and excessive taxation. There should also be some law authorizing boards of supervisors to disorganize townships in which the population is below this minimum. These boards can organize towns, but the legislature only has the power to disorganize them, and hence many of the lumbering counties are now supporting double or thribble the number of towns necessary to the proper transaction of the public business at a large and useless expense to the property owners. Clare, Crawford, Lake, Ogemaw and Roscommon counties are pertinent examples. In Clare county, which had in 1895 an assessed valuation of $1,246,137, one-fourth of the whole territory is in the town of Surrey, with a valuation of $263,695, while the other two-thirds is divided into twelve townships and two cities. The city of Harrison, with a valuaiton of only $86,764, has three supervisors, the town of Hayes, in which Harrison is situated, having a valuation of only $29,163. The city of Clare, with a valuation of $186,110, has three supervisors. The board of supervisors consists of twenty-two members, of whom the one from Surrey represents one-fourth of the whole territory and over one-fifth of the whole assessed value of the county, and pay its full proportion of taxes and expenses made by the other twenty-one members of the board. There is neither justice nor economy in such an over-done system of municipal organization of townships. The situation in Ogemaw, Presque Isle and Roscommon is not much better. In Chippewa county a part of the township of Sault Ste. Marie lies on the river, while another part, consisting of three surveyed townships, lies in the extreme west part of the county, thirty or forty miles distant. Just how the supervisor of such a town can comply with the law to view or inspect the property he is to assess is a matter of conjecture. Perhaps he uses "league boots" and estimates $1 per acre as the cash value of the lands through telescopic goggles.

THE STATE TAX LAWS.

The general tax law of the state, enacted by the legislature of 1893, has so far proved the most efficient and successful in the history of the state. There are a few defects that can be remedied by amendment without interfering with the general text of the law. It is extremely desirable that the tax laws should be stable, and when once fairly in operation, and fully understood by the people, should not be changed. Much of the confusion and loss which the state has suffered in the past, and it has been very large in the aggregate, has arisen: 1st, from the practice of the legislature to change the law every two years, and 2d, from the tendency of the judiciary to set aside its provisions on technicalities. Happily for the state, the present supreme court has taken a broader view of the questions brought before it, and given greater weight to the question of public policy than to narrow technicalities and fine spun theories, in interpreting this important statute. There are a few circuit judges who seldom fail to decide tax cases against the state, but the conservative holdings of the supreme court has kept them in check so that little permanent harm has been done.

The tax law could, in my opinion, be improved by making the provisions for the assessment of personal property more stringent, some thing after the methods of the Indiana law, and it should explicitly require every return made by a taxable to be sworn to. The discretionary power now given to the supervisor is of little use. A few require the statements to be sworn to, many report that property owners refuse to be sworn, and the great mass say that the practice is irregular and optional, especially in cities and villages.

A large acerage of state tax lands are already coming under the provisions of Section 127 of the general tax law and being entered in the state land office as open to entry as homesteads, and the quantity is liable to increase very largely in the near future. The cancellation of the back taxes on these lands is a considerable loss to the state and the counties and townships, but the law has had the effect to check the evil of an excessive valuation by supervisors upon stump lands, pine barrens and swamps owned by non-residents, and thus to a considerable degree lessens this loss. No test cases have arisen under these provisions, as was naturally expected, and hence there is already a considerable demand for them as homesteads. This provision has had the effect to secure a large amount of back taxes from land owners who do not wish to have them deeded to the state under its provisions. If a conservative policy is pursued by the state officers in accepting these abandoned lands the results may continue to be beneficial to the state.

There are upon the state tax books many descriptions of land situated in villages and cities which do not come under the provisions of the law. Taxes have accumulated upon them for five, ten and in some instances for fifteen years, and still they are carried on the state tax lists. Some similar provision should be made to get rid of these old tax titles. The taxes are being levied and returned annually, and many of the descriptions are not now worth the accumulated tax. All such should be deeded to the state, carefully appraised, and then the interest of the state sold at the appraised value. Some such provision would rid the state of a large amount of apparently worthless assets in tax lands, which are now offered annually for sale with no buyers.

Another matter of some considerable importance is that of abandoned villages and the lands platted for the same. There are several of these which are entirely abandoned, and the supervisors continue to assess the lands by lots and blocks, and assess taxes, the whole being returned each year and advertised for decree and sale and bid in to the state. One instance is in the village of Meredith, in Clare county, where the state is annually paying several hundred dollars for advertising these lots, and taxes and charges have already accumulated largely in excess of the value of the property. Some provision should be made whereby the Auditor General may be authorized to take steps to have such plats vacated and a way provided to either secure payment of the taxes or stop the useless expenditure of money in readvertising them every year, as is now required.

In my judgment no other general changes of the tax law should be made at this time.

INHERITANCE TAX.

The legislature of 1893 passed an act "for the taxation of certain transfers of property by gift, grant, inheritance devise or bequest," the object of which was to reimburse the public for a small part of the taxation which wealth escapes from under all ordinary forms of tax procedure. The law was patterned after similar laws which exist in other states, and under and through which large sums of revenue are secured to the treasury of those states. Unfortunately this law was declared unconstitutional by our supreme court because the proceeds were to go into the state treasury for the general purposes of the state. From our examination of that opinion the inference is clear that if the legislature had created a specific tax for the purpose, it would have held good, but such a tax would have been added to the primary school interest fund by another constitutional provision, so that the tax would have no practical effect towards diminishing the general tax burden, as experience shows that the increase of the primary school fund has little or no effect in reducing the school tax levy. This fact emphasizes the necessity already alluded to for a change in the constitution which will give the legislature power to provide revenue for the general purposes of the state, other than by a direct tax upon all the property of the state, as it now requires.

In this connection we offer the suggestion that the time has come when the revenues for the support of the state should be drawn from other sources than a direct tax upon its property. This tax falls largely upon real estate, and bears heavily upon that portion used for production. The farm property of the state is now taxed beyond the reasonable ability of the farmers to pay. If by a change in the constitution, the legislature was allowed to levy a small per cent of taxation upon franchises, the capital stock of corporations, traffic licenses, salaries and special occupations and privileges, the state government could find ample means of support without levying any tax for state purposes upon real estate, and this class of property left to bear only the taxation necessary for county, city and local purposes, which being under direct control of the people, they and not the state would be responsible for the amount and rate imposed upon it. We shall not stop to argue this proposition at length in this report, but will only say that it has been adopted in part or in whole in Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Illinois and Georgia, with satisfactory results. The principal opposition to it comes from the different forms of capital, wh now so largely escapes taxation, from professional men and others w receive salaries, and not owning property escape all the burdens of ta tion, and from those who live in almost deadly fear of such "inqu torial" legislation as will compel them to disclose their intangible a secreted property and wealth to the operation of equitable and just ta tion. One great reform in our present system most needed is to remc the present excessive taxation upon the poor, and those of moder means. Any plan of taxation that will accomplish such a result worthy of careful investigation, for nearly all the tax systems now use in this country are most oppressive upon the laboring classes, a least burdensome upon the fore-handed and wealthy. Every citizen ov something to the government for its protection, while the facts are tl there are many thousands living in comfort and luxury who do not c tribute anything. When such an evil exists it is the duty of the st to spare no reasonable effort to remedy it, even if it requires a radi change in the organic law of the state. No subject calls for dee investigation or more radical treatment than an unequal distribution the burden of public taxation, and it is the duty of every intelligent c zen to lend his aid in doing justice for his fellow tax payer and securi the same justice for himself.

THEORY IN TAXATION.

There is no subject of vital public interest that has evoked so much of abstract theory, as that of taxation. The present is an era of theory. The active minds of the time are constantly thinking—more than are doing—and hence the world is constantly surprised with new theories. The mass of these theories are simply the wonder of the day, and pass into the fruitless past. Theory is utterly useless unless it leads to the development of a practical principle, and that principle must be founded upon a basis of substantial justice and equity to all who are affected by it. As taxes are an "enforced contribution" for a specific purpose, each individual tax payer should be held and placed upon the same equality, both in law and in practice. The weak point in all tax systems is that while the theory and the law are equitable in design and in purpose, the defects and effects of the execution of the law, and the details of the theory, are defective. This is where our system of a universal and equal tax upon all property is weak and ineffective. The principle is just and right, but it is not impartially and wholly executed.

The commission appointed in Connecticut in 1884, to revise the tax system of that state said, "The first defect in our present system which challenges attention, consists in the irregularity in valuation. Our statute requires all taxable property to be listed at the fair market value thereof, and not at the value at a forced or market sale," but it is notorious that in no town do the assessor's value real estate at what they think it is really worth. On the contrary, they make an appraisal of its actual value, and then put it on the lists at a certain per cent of actual value, and varying from twenty-five to seventy-five per cent. * * * "Similar reductions are made in valuing personal property, though with less uniformity, and so perhaps with more injustice to the taxpayers. This is an abuse of long standing, and it is based, of course, on the fact that as each town pays a state tax of a fixed percentage on its grand list, those towns that figure down their list to the lowest point will pay the least to the state. If there was no such state tax it would not affect the tax payers in any town to have their property listed at its full value. The higher the valuation the less would be the tax rate. But as long as the state taxes the towns in the existing way (by a rate per cent on their valuation), we may expect to find the local assessors violating their duty, by systematic under-valuations on the plea that their towns would be taxed more than others if they did not continue this unlawful practice."

The state of New York has followed a similar policy and its workings were thus described in the debates of the last constitutional convention of that state:

"We hold that under our present system, there is no greater manuf tory of perjury on the fact of the earth." * * * "What is the ha throughout the entire length and breadth of the state? Towns fighting towns, through their assessors, to get at the lowest possi point the assessment of their real and personal property, for the p pose of going up to the board of supervisors, and in the apportionm of county charges, have their particular towns as low as possible in roll of taxation. That engenders the habit, or necessity, on the part counties to act in the same way, and hence we find counties cutting do their assessed values in the equalization of their assessment rolls, low as possible, so when they come up here to Albany to appear bef the state equalization board, to divide the state taxation, they shall p the least amount of tax they possibly can. There is no attempt to at the honest actual value of the property by the supervisors a assessors, but there is a constant attempt to get it listed at as lov point as possible, in order to get an advantage over neighboring tov and counties in the dividing of the taxes of the county and state."

An inspection of the equalization and of the proceedings of the st board of equalization of Michigan at its last session will show an ex similar state of facts exists in this state.

In the report of a special tax commission appointed in West Virgi in 1894, this subject is treated as follows:

"The commission has examined into the matter of valuation and fi that while in some of the counties property is assessed at its full mar value, in others it is rated at half, and in some at less than half. T reason is that under our present method there is no recognized stand of value, which is maintained and enforced throughout the state; several assessors have each adopted a standard of their own, and e has endeavored to place the property of his own county as low as property of any other county; and, be it observed, each assessor v unacquainted with the practice in other parts of the state, and mer guessed at the standard of valuation elsewhere. Hence, most gross, gl ing and notorious inequalities exist."

The state of Georgia, after a similar investigation, had disclosed equally abusive system, changed her whole policy of taxation, impos a large share upon occupations, franchises, and exacting a most str gent method of listing personal property.

The states of Indiana and Illinois have been moving in the same dir tion and with great benefit to the treasury and no injustice to the payers,—vide, quotation from the auditor's report, Indiana, in first p of this report.

The tax commission of Pennsylvania in 1892 made a valuable a exhaustive report, in which it says:

"The practice of assessing property below its actual value is the ca of a large part of the outcry against unequal and unjust taxation. Wh property is valued for taxation at its full market value the assessor compelled to exercise proper care in comparing and equalizing assessment, for, under such a practice, an unequal assessment wo mean the over-valuation of some property, and make his tax levy illeg as such over valuation would probably be held in law an exaction confiscation. But when the assessor attempts to return taxable prope at less than its true or market value the irregularities in his valuati will run all the way between his lower standard and the standard fixed by law, which is always the full selling value. This will increase the inequalities, without, perhaps, a decided illegality, but it is obvious that no plan of taxation will work satisfactorily under a practice which permits fluctuating and unequal assessments. We believe that no property should be valued for taxation at less than the sum for which it, or similar property, has been recently sold, under lawful conditions, and that the law should compel assessors, under penalty, if need be, to adopt this rule.

"For the purpose of removing all temptation toward under valuation the plan of setting apart a class of subjects to be taxed for state purposes only, leaving all other subjects to be taxed for local purposes only, may be worthy of careful consideration. Under such a policy no unfair motive for under valuation would be wanting, or if the practice should be persisted in, it could only affect the citizens of each separate county or assessment district."

Pennsylvania has to a large extent adopted the plan suggested in the foregoing paragraph, by a system of specific taxes upon corporations, licenses, and upon personal property. The law having been in force for the last six years, the commission says:

"In valuing property for purposes of taxation, the tendency is always downward. The natural proclivity of the average citizen to shift the public burdens from himself to others, and the consequent pressure brought upon assessment officers, is sufficient to account for this tendency; but a system of ad valorem valuation state taxation, under which the quota to be contributed by the several counties is made to depend upon the valuation of the property in each county, renders this proclivity towards low valuation irresistable. Under this system the assessed value of taxable property in the neighboring states has reached a very low rate, and it requires constant contention on the part of the taxing officers to prevent it going still lower. Our own tax laws were originally framed on the same plan, but through a series of amendments and judicial decisions—partly by accident and partly by design—state taxation has been divorced from local taxation in Pennsylvania, and cogent reasons may be found for thus keeping them for ever separated."

There is urged but one serious objection against this plan of setting apart special classes of subjects to be taxed for special purposes, to wit: It might lack the flexibility to adapt itself to future economic changes. It is conceded that it could be made equitable for the time being by a careful adjustment of values and taxes upon each class of subjects, but the creation of new forms of property and the introduction of new industrial methods andagencies would produce inequalities, as has been done by the same agencies under present systems. But that would not be a serious objection in this state, where the practice is to amend and change the tax laws as often and as much as possible, usually anticipating agencies and emergencies which never arise.

In the state of Connecticut a similar departure from the direct state tax policy is on trial; in this case, the state depending upon a small tax upon the investments of its citizens. For the first two years, the owners of stocks, bonds, mortgages, etc., to avoid the heavier local tax levy, came forward freely and listed these securities for the state tax, and the resources of the state were ample, but it is now reported that the holders of these securities are inventing means to avoid the payment of these lesser taxes even, and the withdrawals are so large as to threaten a deficit in the state's revenues. If this is true, it is another illustration of the modern tendency to exalt tax dodging to the highest economic science of the times, and make "the manufacture of perjury" still more respectable.

There is a great outcry against "inquisitorial tax laws," but practical tests have shown that no tax law is effective that it not "inquisitorial." The government has a right to be "inquisitorial." Its first object is to enforce justice and protect rights, and it departs from that object in allowing its taxes, that "enforced contribution," which is the first necessity of its existence, to be unequally distributed. The man who deliberately dodges his fair and equal share of necessary taxation is simply a robber of his fellow citizens, and no law can be too "inquisitorial" to ferret out robbery or dishonesty. If patriotism, integrity and personal honor cannot be relied upon, then law should be made the remedy. The hungry tramp that steals a poor man's chicken, is, by a law a thief, but the tax dodger, who in effect compels the poor man to sell a dozen chickens to pay another's share of the public taxes, is equally a thief, though the law fails to reach his case, and the public still overestimates his respectability and integrity. The trouble with our tax laws is that they are not "inquisitive" enough, and are also lacking in provisions for punishing not only the tax dodgers, but the assessing officers.

The advocates of the single tax system base their claims to the superiority of that theory over the present system, almost wholly upon the conditions described in the foregoing statements. The single tax system has not yet been brought to a practical test. The revenue laws of no country or government show anything near an attempt to utilize, or adopt it, unless the setting aside of specific subjects for specific taxation be considered a test of the principle, as applied to those subjects. If so, then, as in the case of Connecticut, that theory is liable to fail. The advocates of the single tax appeal to the working classes and men of moderate means, with promise that the plan would lighten their burdens and thus benefit the poor. Instead, it would more likely rob the men of moderate means and the poor of all hope for ever obtaining land or homes. One of the principal drawbacks to the day laboring mechanic or working man, to the small farmer, or the man of limited means, both in cities and country, is the excessive taxation of real estate. To eliminate the small proportion of the public burden now borne by personal property and place it upon their homes would only benefit the rich and injure the poor. And then, to destroy for purposes of taxation the buildings and improvements now taxed as a part of the realty, and impose all the taxation upon equalized land valuation, at so much per foot or acre, would annihilate the idea of home ownership in all except the wealthy class of the people. No better scheme could be devised of destroying patriotism and interest in public affairs than taxing the people out of the ownership of their homes and farms, which this system would inevitably do, and in the end, if sale for taxes continued as the final means for the enforcement of the taxes, the state would soon own all but the valuable lands, and not being able to collect taxes on its own land, would be as bankrupt of cash, as the single tax theory is of reason.

Any plan of taxation that will relieve the working or poorer classes deserves careful investigation, for all the tax systems that we can now find in use are more or less oppressive and discriminating against the poorer classes, either in theory or in their practical application. The method to relieve them by a single tax can easily be put to a practical test by a careful observation of the effects of the present laws. In the assessment lists of most large cities there is a separate valuation for the land, and the buildings, thus giving a good basis for comparision. The value of personal property can be closely approximated. A careful compilation of such assessments by the Pennsylvania tax commission leads them to remark that "the taxation of land without buildings will diminish the burden on the homes of the poor, providing that personal property is also taxed, but the taxation of land alone, without the taxation of personal property will show the opposite results."

The only correct theory of tax laws and taxation is that of exact equality. An unjust tax will always be resisted or evaded, and inequality is always injustice. All taxation should be reduced to the minimum of the public necessity. The moment a tax becomes so large as to be felt, it becomes a burden, and if it is so laid as to bear upon one class, one kind of property, one town or even on one farm more heavily than another similarly situated and of about equal value, the injustice increases the burden. Thus, in Ohio and other states the law only permits a change of value upon real estate once in three years, in some other states, once in five years, thus insuring stability of value, a factor absolutely unknown under the law and methods of this state.

New Jersey has adopted the system of state supervision of the assessments over all the counties, cities and subdivisions of the state, and thus obtains a better average of values, and a corresponding average of taxation. The state has a board of tax commissioners of five members, who meet in every county and city to examine, correct and equalize the assessment and tax rolls, and also act as a board of review for each municipality and there is no appeal from the board except to the supreme court. The system has been in force since 1893, and is said to be generally satisfactory and popular. It has corrected many evils, and assessors are now required to list all credits, book accounts, bills receivable, watches, jewelry, household furniture, dogs and other taxable property that usually escapes their notice. It is the first attempt at general state supervision, and if it continues successful for any considerable period, will undoubtedly be followed in other states.

Another theory fatal to equality in taxation is the contention of owners of vacant lands situate in localities adjacent to the larger towns, to thriving manufacturing centers, or in the midst of well developed and prosperous farming districts, and which are held for speculative purposes, should be assessed at low value because it yields no immediate income. This contention is an erroneous one, and should never be admitted by the assessor. The very term, speculator or speculation, indicates expectant gains, and it is admitted by all the most noted writers upon economics that "any increasing value is income," and hence should be equally valued with like property, the improvement or rise of which is adding not only to its value, but to ultimate income. Prof. Arthur T. Hadley, in his volume upon Economics, page 474, says:

"The present practice of assessors in this matter is a good illustration of the misapplication of the principle of taxation according to ability. The holder of unimproved real estate gets no apparent income from it, he is therefore taxed on only a small percentage of the market value of the property, while the owner of improved land must pay a correspondingly heavier tax. This puts a premium on the worst sort of land speculation. The man who serves society is burdened; the man who stands in the way and tries to profit by others' progress is encouraged and helped."

The taxation of moneys and credits has long been a subject of much discussion in all the states, and diverse laws are made regarding it, and contrary opinions are held by the ablest writers who have studied it deepest and longest, to say nothing of conflict of judicial opinions. The most popular belief is that all fiscal obligations should be taxed equal with other property. This opinion is tenaciously strong among borrowers. Lenders and others contend that neither moneys nor credits should be taxed at any rate, or, if taxed at all, should be classed as a distinct subject, at a low rate. They assume that neither currency, nor an obligation to pay currency, is property; that money in itself is nothing but a measure of value, and that a note or a bond is only a promise to pay, and should be treated in all respects like any other promise, and if taxed the tax must be paid by the promisor, who is already taxed for the property for which the obligation is given. Thus, if A should sell a horse to B in February, and take B's note, payable in six months, the assessor comes round in April and he assesses the horse to B, and the note to A; thus, the same property is put on the assessment twice, while there is no increase in property, for both assessments merely represent the same horse. There is some force in the above proposition as put, but the consensus of opinion is that the exchange has made increased value that represents property that is taxable.

The same contention applies to the taxation of mortgages, with the same arguments in refutation. The two special attempts made in this state to make the taxation of mortgages more thorough and absolute have been dismal failures, and resulted in more harm to the general tax payer than to the holders of mortgages. It illustrates the often proved fact, that attempts to single out any particular kind of property for a special burden, always results in that property hiding or evading the law and the entire burden.

The deduction of debts from credits is another disputed theory. This provision is embodied in the tax laws of a majority of the states, but the taxing officers in all of them have found that unprincipled men and chronic tax dodgers will create fictitious obligations for the purpose of evading a part or the whole of their money or credit valuation.

In my opinion credits, notes and mortgages should be eliminated from taxable property under our present system, neither should there be any reductions for debt. We have tried the other theory in all its phases with but small practical results, and now there is but little to loose by trying the reverse. If by voluntarily releasing the pursuit of this intangible kind of personal property, and repealing the numerous exemptions given for debts and upon tangible personal property, like household furniture, musical instruments, libraries and other luxuries that are now untaxed, the assessment rolls will be the gainers in the long run. It will also contest the truth of the contention that such legislation will favor the poor man and the borrower by reducing the rates of interest, making money more plenty and more freely used, when it is freed from the pursuit of the assessing officer and the tax gatherer. While under the present system their is very little to lose, it may possibly, in time, more than equalize, in its ultimate effects, the temporary loss.

Professor Hadley in his great work on "Economics and Taxation" sums up his conclusions, partly in saying:

"A poll tax is in frequent use; but it is neither productive nor equitable, and stands as a relic of past methods, rather than as a subject of present importance. An inheritance tax has much to recommend it, in the fact that it takes property for the use of the state at the time when individuals least feel its loss. It is also easy of collection, because all estates of deceased persons must come under cognizance of the probate court, independently of the question of taxation. The chief objections to such a tax, are the possibility of evading it by donations before death, and the uncertainty of the amount which it will produce in any given year, which makes it unavailable as calculable source of immediate revenue. In spite of these objections, an increasing amount of government income is being collected by this method.

"Adam Smith, in a passage frequently quoted (Wealth of Nations), lays down four criteria of a good tax system: equity, certainty, convenience of time of payment, and avoidance of unnecessary cost of collection, direct or indirect. If all these things can be combined, the tax is obviously a good one. But what if they cannot all be combined? What if the first two requirements (which are most fundamental general principles, the third and fourth being largely matters of administrative detail) be found to conflict with one another? What shall we do if the pursuit of equity demands sacrifice of certainty, and all of the methods of taxation which promise a sure return, seem to leave some men untouched, who can best afford to pay? By placing equity first, Smith gives countenance to the popular view that we should make this not only our ideal of taxation, but our guiding principles in framing tax laws. As an ideal it is undoubtedly right; as a guiding principle, it will be found to defeat the realization of that ideal.

"It should be said in justice to Smith, that the distinction between ideals and guiding principles in taxation, which has since become so conspicuous, was in his day only just beginning to take shape. In ancient times certainty and equity went hand in hand. The men who held property and enjoyed incomes had this property and income in forms which rendered it easy of assessment. Their wealth consisted chiefly of real estate. Personal property was small in amount and consisted largely of visible and tangible objects, like plate or jewels, kept for display, rather than for income. The persons who could best pay taxes held the property whose value could be ascertained. The attempts to levy taxes on other people, though frequently made, were at once ineffective and unjust. But from the time of Adam Smith downward, there has been an increasing divergance from this state of things. The persons who are best able to pay taxes are not so situated that the assessors can ascertain the exact measure of their ability. Invisible forms of personal property, like stocks or notes, have assumed a dominant importance. The attempt to secure equal contribution by a general income tax, or rather a general property tax, may result in exempting the dishonest and burdening the honest, in making a tax system, whose burdens are wholly out of proportion to the financial results. Under these conditions the tax legislator now has to choose between making equality or certainty his primary end, rather than to keep both in view as coordinate aims.

"In the light of experience in modern industrial communities, there can scarcely be any doubt as to the proper choice. Certainty is the fundamentally important object, without which all attempts at equity prove illusory. With an uncertain tax no systematic improvement can be hoped for. With a certain tax any evils which exist at the outset tend to diminish as time goes on.

"If people would carry out to its logical conclusion the modern theory that taxes are a selfimposed burden, we might make equity our primary object as well as our ultimate goal. Where public sentiment insists that people shall make correct tax returns, and treats laxity in this respect as a dereliction of public duty, the tax legislator has a comparatively freehand. There are certain communities where this sentiment is so strong that the principle of selfassessment can be safely adopted, with the knowledge that crooked tax returns will be as severely condemned by the individual conscience as crooked voting. But with the increasing margin of doubt as to what constitutes taxable income, the difficulties of relying on such sentiment become greater; and in the absence of such a controlling motive no tax law can be made effective, unless framed with the immediate purpose of preventing evasion.

"Uncertainty may result either from failure to discover the objects which should be taxed; or from doubt as to their value; or from the possibility of collusion between the Assessor and the person who should pay the tax by which consent is given to an unduly low valuation.

"To avoid the first evil, taxes should be levied, as far as possible, upon visible and tangible objects. In general, things should be assessed rather than persons. The attempt to rely on personal disclosure as a means of discovering taxable property, results in discrimination of the worst character. The property of income of widows and orphans, which is in the hands of trustees, whose reports are matters of public knowledge, is taxed at its full value; so is that of a few exceptionally conscientious men. The majority of men make some return of taxable property sufficient to satisfy their consciences; but they interpret all doubtful points in their own favor, so as to make as few returns as possible. They take the law into their own hands; and as an English essayist has said, the law is such a fragile thing that when men take it into their own hands it is sure to get broken. Finally, there is a considerable class of men who have no conscience at all in the matter, and who, in safe reliance on the certainty that their property will remain undiscovered, escape taxation on everything which the law hopes to discover by their declaration.

"Nor is this an evil that tends to correct itself by time. The success of the bad in escaping taxation, and the impunity with which they defy the law, lowers the public conscience year by year. When we have a tax law which discriminates against dishonesty, the honesty and the law both suffer in about equal measure.

"Of the visible and tangible sources of taxation, real estate is probably the most important. It can always be seen; it can never run away. In order to be sure of taxing its owners, it is only necessary to apply the rule of making no deductions on account of debt. Mortgaged real estate should be assessed at its full value. This may seem to bear hard on the debtor, but it is really far more equitable than the system of deductions. If such deductions are allowed, a large part of the money loaned on real estate escapes taxation altogether; while undue burdens are put, first, on the holder of unmortgaged real estate, who has to pay a higher tax rate on account of the deductions made from the grand list, and, second, on the honest minority of lenders, chiefly those whose property is held in trust, who pay a high tax rate on their investments, while most other investors made no adequate return of property thus loaned. The holder of mortgaged real estate gets comparatively little benefit from the deduction, because the theory that such loans are taxable against the lender drives enough honest investors out of the mortgage loan market to keep the rate of interest higher than it otherwise would be. The real beneficiary is the unscrupulous investor, who profits by the high interest rate, and makes no tax return.

"The chief obstacle to a change in system, apart from the reluctance of legislators to abandon the old principle of taxing persons instead of things, is found in the apparent loss to communities of lenders, in allowing property which their citizens own, to be taxed in the place where it is invested. But the actual amount collected in this way is very small in proportion to the vexation involved.

"Another objection urged against this plan is that real estate, which is already overburdened, will suffer still more, while personal property will be correspondingly relieved. But the secondary result of relieving the lender from taxation, owing to increased competition among different lenders, will be a lowering of the rate of interest, and the holders of personal property will thus indirectly pay a larger share of the taxes than they now do. If such loans can be reached by this indirect method, one of the largest items of personal property will be taxed; and a very large part of the remainder can be reached by taxes on corporations.

"In the assessment of corporate property, as in that of real estate, no deduction should be allowed for indebtedness. If the attempt is made to tax the debt in the hands of the holders, it will fail. The tax should reach the whole property of the corporation without reference to the question of its ownership. In that way, and in that way only, will it be evenly distributed. If the market price of the securities is used as a means of ascertaining the value of such property, bonds, as well as stocks, should be included in the estimate. It affords opportunities for evasion no less than for injustice, if two railroads, physically alike, pay different rates of taxes, because the capital of the one was largely borrowed, while that of the other was subscribed.

"The third source of uncertainty arises from danger of collusion between the assessors and those who pay the taxes. This comes about chiefly when minor civil divisions are asked to contribute to the general government, on the basis of their assessed valuation. For local purposes, it makes no difference to a town whether its citizens pay a tax of one per cent on a valuation of $2,000,000, or two per cent on a valuation of $1,000,000. But, if they are asked to contribute to the general government, the community with the less valuation will have an advantage, and the desire to secure such advantages will lead the local authorities to a system of undervaluations, which may easily result in great irregularities. No board of equalization can correct such an evil. For certainty of valuation, it is indispensable that the objects of national and local taxation shall be kept as far as possible separate from one another."

Of all the innumerable remedies that have been proposed by economists and legislators who have studied the system of assessments for purposes of taxation, as it is practiced in this state, none have had any appreciable or practical results. Under the elective system, none may be looked for, while even under the appointive method, merit and integrity have comparatively small advantages in coping with personal and political prejudice and the inveterate and unceasing exertions of the dishonest and covetious tax dodgers. The only guarantee for the faithful discharge of public duty under our system is thorough and tireless public scrutiny. These will purify public affairs as their free circulation purifies air and water. Unless the tax payers take interest enough to see to it that their fellows are properly assessed as well as themselves, there is no remedy, nor will there be any decrease in favoritism and inequality.

We cannot conclude this part of our subject better than by quoting from Prof. Julius H. Seeleye, of Amherst college:

"The subject of taxation is one of the most important which can claim the attention of the legislator, and it is as difficult as it is important. The course of the state upon this matter touches the welfare, and brings good or ill to every man, woman and child within its borders, and leads to results, often so intricate, and always so various, that it needs the clearest and most comprehensive vision of the trained statesman to foresee them. No practical question of the state requires greater caution in its administration, or greater knowledge of its history, effects and influences. No change should be adopted in any established system of taxation without there is an almost absolute necessity, because no change can be made without economic derangement which brings resultant evil. There may be a good commensurate with the evil, and even more than sufficient to compensate therefor, in which case changes would, of course, be wise. But as any change must necessarily involve the unsettlement of some long time adjustment pressure, requiring for any new tax imposed, and for any old one repealed, a fresh adjustment, with many inconveniences certain, with many inequalities probable, during the process, a truly wise man will not be in haste to propose it, whatever the existing system may be. Especially where a tax system has been long followed by an increasingly prosperous community or state, radical or theoretical changes should be most carefully considered and all the consequences intelligently weighed and discussed before they are adopted."

PART II.

TAXATION.

This division of this report is made up of tabulated statements of the taxes levied in each and all of the townships, cities and counties of the State, for all purposes, so far as the same could be obtained from county and township officers.

The compilation reprints the full taxation for the years 1892, 1893, 1894, and 1895, arranged alphabetically by counties, towns and cities, with a statement at the close of each year, totalizing the same by counties for each year, and the years following in consecutive order.

There is always complaint about the heavy burden of taxation and it is usual and fashionable to charge the responsibility upon the State—the administration and legislature. These tables are the first effort made in this State to collect the aggregate of all the taxes levied and to show the immense aggregate, and the exact amount used in support of each department or branch of our complex system of general and local government. There are a few items omitted in many towns and counties, as the "excess of roll," in the failure to report the dog taxes, etc., and for special assessments in the cities, which would add a considerable percentage to the aggregate sum of all the taxes actually levied and paid by the people in the State, but these are all of a local character, and would only swell the sum of the township and city taxes, and not affect those of the State or counties.

It will be seen that the State government is really responsible for a very small part of the aggregate of taxation. The counties are generally very economically managed. The school or educational taxes are heavy in all parts of the State, and it must be also remembered that the primary school and interest funds add something more than a million dollars annually to the amount given in these tables to the support of the educational interests of the State. The largest and most oppressive burden of taxation is in the townships and cities, and in those loca matters, entirely within the local control of the people themselves.

It will be somewhat a surprise to examine and note in these table the very heavy expenses of many of the exclusively rural township where taxes are voted and used by town officials, ranging from fiv hundred to some thousands of dollars a year, all controlled by tow officers and their friends, but not all, we fear, used for necessary publi purposes. A careful scrutiny of the expenses of such townships may perhaps, impress many taxpayers with the idea that economy migh perhaps begin at home, and find rich food for strength, before attemp ing too much reform for the county and State.

The amount of all the liquor taxes is also added in making th aggregate, as these taxes are divided equally with the town, or ci- in which paid and the county, and therefore form a part of the expens of local government, and not of the State or educational funds. It wa impracticable for us in this compilation to make this division, so th tax is given a separate column, and those interested in figuring o the exact percentage of costs of their county and municipal governmen can easily divide this tax and place it where it belongs.

In the preliminary part of the report attention will be called mo fully to the large taxation in cities, as well as townships, with som suggestions tending towards more economy, and to a fairer and mo equitable apportionment of the burden imposed upon the taxpayer

This part of the report is submitted as a plain statement of fact Time has not allowed such an analysis of the items, or the calculatio of percentages as was intended, but these can readily be made by an who are interested in such comparisons. The main object is to get th actual and true statements of the several kinds and causes of taxatio fully and impartially before the legislature and the people.

EQUALIZATION.

:ollowing tables were prepared for the use of the State Board of zation to show:
ıe great discrepancy between the assessments and equalization county board of supervisors and the State; ıe general disregard of all equitable rules, and the law, in making nents and equalizations;
he ease with which values can be changed by supervisors, thus ɜ taxes unequal and variable each year;
he enormous slump or loss in personal property in nearly every
', city, and township in the State;
he constant tendency of assessing officers and the county board rease the volume of property;
he disastrous effects of the law of 1891, in changing the method of ing mortgages from personal to real property, thus imposing an ous additional tax burden upon the real estate; and
.s an ideal form that should be adopted by all boards of supervisors ›rd every taxpayer an opportunity to analyze the work done by ›rs and supervisors intelligently, as that work affects the business terests of every citizen.
tables are printed alphabetically by counties, from A to W, and ›lete summary of each is attached, so that each reader can readily s own or any county he has an interest in, and make comparisons he methods and values of townships, cities and counties throughɜ whole state.

NOTE.—This is one of the counties where no attention seems to be paid to the law requiring equalization except the years when the State is equalized. The county clerk in forwarding the meager returns, says, "there is no record in my office to show the amounts assessed against real estate or personal property." The assessment is nearly all for real estate, as only $82,685.00 of personal was returned in 1891, though the woods were full of lumber camps, teams and supplies, and millions of feet of pine was banked and skidded, and thus liable for assessment. The number of acres of land assessed in 1891, was 382,666, and the average assessed value only $1.92 per acre.

[Equalized valuation—$1,500,000.00.]

NOTE.—The assessments in this county do not show as much change as in many others, and the equalization seems fairly made. It is one of the few counties that equalizes upon a fixed basis, and shows prominently not only the disastrous effect of the law of 1891 upon the personal property assessment, but the strong tendency to reduce personal that pervades the whole State, thus imposing an undue amount of taxation upon real estate.

[Equalized valuation as fixed by the State Board in 1891—$6,000,000.00.]

NOTE.—There seems to be no equitable assessment or equalization in this county, if the figures are reported correctly. It hardly seems possible that the lands outside the city of Alpena are assessed at their cash value, especially in the towns of Green, Ossineke and Sanborn. The remarkable decrease in the value of real estate in the city of Alpena, both as assessed and equalized, will attract attention.

NOTE.—The assessment and equalization for this year shows a considerable increase in value of land and personal, both in the city of Alpena, mainly. The acreage value of land as assessed rises from $1.95 to $2.12, while the per cent of equalized increase is five times as great. Under this equalization the city of Alpena bears nearly 80 per cent of the State and county taxes.

NOTE.—The assessment this year shows a heavy increase in the city and a corresponding decrease in the country; also a heavy falling off in equalization, the change shifting a large percentage of taxes from personal to real estate, and from the city upon the country. Such radical changes hardly seem justifiable upon any reasonable business conditions and are evidently brought about by other considerations.

NOTE.—This county shows the most excessive change caused by the assessment of mortgages as real property of any in the State, increasing the realty nearly two and a half millions, without decreasing the personal—showing that the mortgages were all held outside the county.

NOTE.—The above totals are all the returns we are able to obtain from this county, as they seem to have a quite different method of transacting business and keeping records there from most of the rest of the State. The salient point to observe is that the aggregate assessed and equalized valuation has decreased thirty millions in five years. The entire lack of detailed returns precludes any estimate or statement in regard to the assessed value of mining and other lands, or of the nature or real value of the personal property.

NOTE.—We call especial attention to the variation of the personal property assessment in this county. There is no excuse for a change of over a half a million dollars in each year, and a close inspection of the detailed returns will partially explain the motives of the assessors.

NOTE. This county seems to be going all to pieces. While the assessed valuations have steadily decreased the equalized valuations have increased the aggregate valuation each year from the assessed value. The city of Au Sable has fallen from $[illegible] to $[illegible]. The valuation of the township of Au Sable has increased from $1,000,000 to $370,000, and Tawas City from $400,000 to $[illegible]. The decadence of the lumber industry is the main cause of the great shrinkage in values in this county.

...ty seems to be going all to pieces. While the assessed valuations have steadily decreased the board of supervisors have also lowered the ... the assessed value. The city of Au Sable has fallen from $1,300,000 to $115,000; Oscoda from $1,780,000 to $450,000; East Tawas ... $400,000 to $180,000. The decedence of the lumber industry has been very great, and probably justifies the decline

NOTE.—This county is equalized by the county board upon a fixed basis of $25,000,000, and the tables indicate a seemingly fixed purpose on the part of the assessors to reduce the personal assessments as low as possible and thus impose a larger amount of taxation upon the real property.

NOTE.—It will be seen that the local assessment and equalization of Kent county is kept at $35,000,000, or $15,000,000 below the valuation fixed by the State board, which would seem much too large a difference. The personal property of the county is evidently assessed at a very low figure, as the several banks and trust companies in Grand Rapids reported in December, 1895, assets amounting to over $13,000,000, after deducting the value of real estate held by them, showing about double the entire personal assessment of the whole county.

NOTE.—This is another county that is fast losing its pine and declining in value. From statements filed in this office there is no doubt that gross frauds have been and are still being perpetrated in the assessment of lumber plants, and that some pay practically nothing to support the State or county. The pine is nearly all gone, and the land is of very poor quality.

NOTE.—The decrease of over half a million in valuation, of which $300,000 is personal, in five years is not an encouraging feature in so prosperous a county as this was supposed to be by the rest of the State.

NOTE.—There does not seem to be much system or method in the equalization of this county, the board evidently adopting a "cut and try" policy. All seem to agree however in depreciating values of both real and personal property.

NOTE.—This county equalizes upon a fixed basis, but four millions below that made by the State board. The assessment and equalization show less variation than common. Outside the period covered by the tax law of 1891, it has been very stable, showing but small changes or fluctuations. The net decrease in personal during the five years has been very small compared with other old counties of the State.

NOTE.—The assessment in this county is rediculously low, and some complaints have been made of inequality. There is a large quantity of good land and timber, and there seems no valid excuse for keeping the valuation so low.

NOTE.—This county shows a large loss of personal and corresponding increase in real, shifting a large percentage of taxation upon the latter. The growth of villages has caused a considerable decrease in value per acre of farm lands.

NOTE.—Regardless of the action of the State Board the supervisors have reduced the valuation of property in this county until it represents on a trifle over two-fifths of the original equalization. This makes the State tax appear nearly 5% on the face of the assessment. Either the State equalization should be reduced or steps taken to compel supervisors to assess and equalize up to the real and equalized value as fixed by the State Board.

NOTE.—Regardless of the action of the State Board the supervisors have reduced the valuation of property in this county until it represents on a trifle over two-fifths of the original equalization. This makes the State tax appear nearly 5½ on the face of the assessment. Either the State equalization should be reduced or steps taken to compel supervisors to assess and equalize up to the real and equalized value as fixed by the State Board.

NOTE.—The total number of acres assessed, exclusive of cities in 1881, was 587,822; in 1886 the acres are returned at 528,333, a decrease of 9,489. In 1891 the total acres are returned at 509,946, a decrease from the prior equalization of 18,387. Total shrinkage in ten years of 17,876 acres of land assessed in this county. Valued at $34.19 per acre, the average of 1891, this shows a loss of assessable value of $611,261 of real estate in the county since 1881. As no acreage was reported since 1891 the comparison cannot be brought down to date.

NOTE.—This county has assessed nearly up to the valuation fixed by the State Board, and unlike most counties has increased its equalized valuation largely. It is almost wholly an agricultural county, and hence the increased valuation represents entirely the increased value of its real estate.

Net decrease									$471,262

NOTE.—The net decrease of nearly half a million personal while the real property increased over a million and a half, in five years, is a remarkable showing for an ordinary board of supervisors, even in Michigan. The returns also show a decrease of acres assessed of 8,900 in the past ten years, which is a loss of $415,000 in real estate value, which if added to the above increase would amount to over two million, or over 20 per cent added to the taxation of the real property of the county than its equitable proportion.

NOTE.—This county shows a large falling off in the value of both real and personal during the last five years. When we note that its original equalization in 1891 was about 40 per cent below its true cash value, as established by the State Board, it would seem that any further reduction was wholly uncalled for. Compared with other counties in that part of the State, it does not make as good a showing as the facts warrant and deserve.

NOTE.—This county shows a remarkably even assessment for the period since 1891. The growth of the villages has had tendency to reduce the average value per acre, and also compensate for the decline of personal upon farms. The changes have been small and the assessments and equalizations carefully and judiciously made.

NOTE.—This county lost $757,048 under the mortgage tax law of 1891 and recovered only $282,500 back, and as it has equalized upon a fixed basis of $12,000,000 the result is that the real estate has been burdened with $1,751,000 extra valuation, and the tax rate upon farms has been increased nearly 15 per cent while the value per acre has decreased 10 per cent. The falling off in villages is quite equal to that in farm property.
